RELEASE NOTES

Assembly district boundaries are based on Sept 13, 2001 census block assignments passed by the California Legislature, and is located at <http://www.assembly.ca.gov/acs/committee/c7/asmfinal/newtextdocument.html>

Population/Demographic data is from the US Census Bureau, Census 2000 Summary File 1, and is located at <http://www.census.gov/census2000/states/ca.html>

Social, Economic and Housing data is from the US Census Bureau, Census 2000 Summary File 3, and is located at <http://www.census.gov/census2000/states/ca.html>. This data was aggregated at a census block group level, and was also based on a sample (about 1 in 6 households that received the Census 2000 long-form questionnaire). To accurately reflect this data for Legislative districts, the blocks groups had to be apportioned to their component census blocks based population and housing shares. Therefore this data has a slight margin of error

Electoral data is from the Institute of Governmental Studies Statewide Database, University of California at Berkeley, and is located at <http://swdb.berkeley.edu/data/d00/index.html>. Electoral returns are collected in precincts, whose boundaries change in many cases in every election. Thus in order to compare political behavior over time, the Statewide Database aggregates voting data up to a common geographical level, and then breaks them down - or disaggregates them - to the census block. Additionally, some counties do not report Absentee Ballot results at a precinct level and therefore some election results may show less votes cast than reported by the California Secretary of State. Therefore this data has a small margin of error.
